One time my aunt came to my house with water balloons. And then we started throwing them at each other and my brother hit my sister with a water balloon on her back. I felt excited. I threw water balloons at both of them. Then my sister took a water balloon as big as my brother's face and threw it at him. And they kept on doing it over and over again. So I took a water balloon and threw it at both of them. Then they fell down and they kept on chasing me. And then everybody started throwing water balloons at each other.
